

HUMAN-CAUSED CHANGES IN CARBON POOLS

In each of these figures the large squares represent the original size of the carbon pool; the red squares represent the amount of carbon gained (solid) or lost (hollow) from human activity. All the figures are billions of tons (gigatons) of carbon.